

An aerial photograph of a beautiful coastal area. In the foreground, there's a dense green forest on a hillside overlooking a turquoise bay. Several small white boats are scattered in the water. In the background, a large, rugged island with a prominent white building (possibly a monastery or castle) rises from the sea. The water transitions from shallow turquoise near the shore to a deep blue further out.

